COUNCIL CUTS WATER RATES

ANOTHER 5 PER CENT ADDED TO DISCOUNT.

IS FOURTH SINCE 1923

Reductions In Three And One-Half Years Total 45 Per Cent.—Amount Consumed Increases.

"The cheaper the water, the more will be consumed."

This is the theory upon which the city council proceeded last night, when it passed an ordinance making a further 5 per cent reduction in the water rate.

The reduction means that the water consumer who pays his account within ten days after the bill is due, for water furnished by the city, is entitled to a 25-per-cent reduction, instead of 20 per cent as at present. The ordinance goes into effect January 1, 1927, and applies to water consumed in December, 1926.

MayorW. O. Garrett explained this morning that, accompanying the new reduction, the minimum charge would be reduced from $1 to 75 cents. Under this rate, the small consumer may use 165 1-3 cubic feet of water, or 1,240 gallons. Explained in another way, the rate is a fraction over 3 cents a barrel, 52 gallons of water to the barrel.

The large consumers will obtain a reduction in proportion, as the rate is based on a sliding scale.

The scale is graduated to a maximum of 34,000 cubic feet, and a charge of 15 cents per 100 cubic feet has been made over this amount. The discount will make this rate 11 cents a 100 cubic feet on all water used over the 34,000 cubic feet mark.

City officials explained that the reduction was made possible on account of the increase in water consumption, and also because of lower operating costs in proportion to the water consumed.

A year ago a 10 per cent reduction was made in the water rate. At that time the excess of revenue over all costs averaged $500 a month or $6,000 a year. Deducting all the operating costs, salaries and increasing renewals (extension of mains and costs of extending the service), the city commissioners felt justified in making the reduction.

However, in the last twelve months, the revenue above all costs in connection with the water department has mounted to $805 a month, or in exact figures the surplus was compiled as $9,664.09, Mayor Garrett said.

"For this reason we feel justified in making the extra 5 per cent reduction," were the Mayor's words today.

Under an efficient management, the city executive and legislative body has been able to make four distince reductions in the city water rate since July, 1923.

The first reduction of 10 per cent was made in July, 1923; a second discount of 20 per cent, July, 1924; the third discount of 10 per cent made in December, 1925; and now the 5 per cent discount.

In three and a half years the rate has been reduced in Maryville approximately 45 per cent.

Five Men Added to Local Postal Force

Three Of Them Help In City Mail Delivery.—Christmas Mailing Rush Begins In Earnest.

To care for the deluge of incoming and outgoing mail during the Christmas rush, five extra employes have been added to the Maryville postal department, J. F. Hull, postmaster, announced today.

The increase in the number of packages to be delivered by parcel post has necessitated the addition of three men on the city mail deliveries. It was announced that Edward Tindall, Bennett French and Ralph Dragoo are aiding the carriers on the four city routes.

Two other men, Paul Fisher and Herman Linneman, have been assigned to work on sorting the mail and whatever other duties the officials find for them.

Although a heavy increase in mailing was noticed here yesterday, the real rush started this morning, with long lines of persons waiting to "get off some presents." In order to take care of the Christmas mailing, another window has been opened.

City's Clear Water Well Is Completed

Last Of Concrete Is Poured At 2 O'Clock This Morning.—Will Hold 102,450 Gallons.

The clear water storage well, which has been under construction at the Maryville pumping station since November 4, was completed at 2 o'clock this morning, when, under the direction of J. W. Qualls, superintendent of the water department, the last concrete was poured and smoothed over.

The storage will not be placed in use until a new electric pump arrives. The purpose of the storage well is to store water after it has been treated and "finished" and is ready to pump in the city mains.

The well is a circular structure, 11 feet deep and 40 feet in diameter. It will hold 102,450 gallons.

SIX ARRESTED AT BURLINGTON

TWO MEN HELD ON LIQUOR, FOUR ON GAMING CHARGE.

SEEK OWNER OF CAR

Frank Dwyre and James Shores Alleged To Have Handled Liquor.—Hotel Manager One of Others.

Seven men from Burlington Junction, five of them charged with gaming and the other two with violations of the prohibition law were hastily arranging for bond in the office of Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell today. At noon today four had furnished satisfactory bond and the two others promised to find bondsmen by nightfall.

Frank Dwyre was arrested by Sheriff Campbell and Deputy Sheriff U. S. Reavis of Burlington Junction, charged with disposing of liquor. Dwyre was at liberty today, after giving $500 bond to appear at the January term of circuit court to answer the charge.

James Shores was not so fortunate as Dwyre. This afternoon he was at the county jail awaiting arrival of bondsmen to release him from the sheriff's custody on charges of transportation of liquor.

Dwyre and Shores were brought to Maryville by Sheriff Campbell and Deputy Reavis, along with F. S. Patton, Sam Faust, Gomer Wilson and Frank Short.

The latter four were charged with gaming in the Maple Hotel, of which Patton is proprietor. All these men were arrested on information furnished the prosecutor, George Pat Wright.

This afternoon Charles Finnell, a fifth member of the alleged gambling party, was arrested.

Three of those arrested on gaming, Patton, Faust and Wilson, gave satisfactory bond today in the sum of $200 each to appear at the January court term. Short was in the same predicament as Shores, unable to find a bondsman early this afternoon, and was held in the county jail.

Delbert Hammack, also of Burlington Junction, who was arrested yesterday on charges of possession of intoxicating liquor, today was still in the county jail, unable to furnish bond.

The car in which the alleged liquor was found is said to be the property of Jim Dwyre, whom officers are now seeking. The car, a Ford touring, bore a license plate issued for a Dodge touring car and is in the sheriff's custody at Burlington Junction.

An area of 41,807,000 acres of winter wheat was sown this fall. This area is 5 per cent more than the revised estimate of 39,799,000 acres sown in the fall of 1925, the department announced.

PLANES BEGIN LONG FLIGHT

FIVE ARMY SHIPS HOP OFF FOR SOUTH AMERICA.

TO CIRCLE CONTINENT

Minute Preparations Made to Help Big Machines Complete 18,000-Mile Journey in Safety.

Point Isabel, Tex., Dec. 21.—The five army planes under command of Major H. A. Dargue, successfully completed the first leg of their 21,000-mile good will tour of South America when they arrived here at 1:50 p. m. today. The planes left San Antonio at 10:53 a. m.

The fliers will spend the night here, continuing their journey tomorrow.

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 21.—Soaring aloft with a roar into intermittent streams of welcome sunshine, after four days of constant drizzle and a week of cloudy weather, five big amphibian Army airplanes left Kelly field at 10:53 o'clock today on the first hop of an 18,000-mile journey that will take them around South America.

The airplanes took off in the following order:

New York, flagship, at 10:53.
San Antonio, 10:55.
San Francisco, 10:56.
Detroit, 10:57.
St. Louis, 10:58.

The huge machines, their three-bladed propellors roaring through the air, encircled the city, accompanied by an escort of ten planes from Kelly Field. They then turned and left in a southeasterly direction, going by way of Beeville, and from there pointing their course almost due south to Point Isabel, where they are expected to arrive in two and one-half to three hours.

Skirting along the picturesque fringe connecting the two continents, the planes will land at Panama, Valdivia, Chile; Rio de Janeiro; Port of Spain in Trinidad; St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, and thence to Washington. Advance officers have arranged for landings, fuel and other accommodations for the flyers.

No Attempt At Speed Record.

No attempt is to be made by the Army fliers to set up a speed record but it is hoped to complete the long journey without mishap. Great pains have been made to see that no detail no matter how small or trivial, has been overlooked.

A huge celebration attended by dignitaries from all parts of the United States and at which the five Army planes were christened preceded the take-off today. These ceremonies were held yesterday, when the flight was originally scheduled to start but postponed because of unfavorable weather.

The personnel of the Pan-American air fleet numbers 10 officers with Major Herbert A. Drague in command. Major Dargue and Lieut. Ennis C. Whitehead will fly the New York, flagship; Captain Arthur B. McDaniel and Lieut. Charles McK. Robinson, the San Antonio; Captain Ira C. Baker and Lieut. Muir S. Fairchield, the San Francisco; Capt. Clinteh F. Woolsey and Lieut. John W. Benton the Detroit and Lieut. Bernard S. Thompson and Lieut. Leonard Weddington the St. Louis.

The five planes are mounted on large hulls similar to those of a ship, and are also equipped with a landing gear for making a landing on the ground. To land on water, the "land" gear is folded up into a pocket on each side of the hull by means of a crank operated from the cock-pit.

Built For Long Flights.

An inverted 400 horse-power motor of the Liberty type is used in the Pan-American flight ships. The ships are built for long range flying, carrying 200 gallons of gasoline and about 20 gallons of oil.

The type is being developed for use in the island possessions of the United States where considerable water flying has to be done. The three-blade steel propeller is used.

Lined up with their noses even and the propellers whirring, the planes presented a novel picture with bright colors of yellow and black and the United States Air Service insignia of red, white and blue.

A special flight insignia representing the two Americas in a circle mounted on the outspread wings of the air service was painted on the fusilage.

The flight will follow the east coast of Mexico to Puerto, Mex., across the isthmus to Calina Cruz, and thence to the Army air station in the Canal Zone. From Colon the route follows the coast of South America to Valdivia, in Chile, where the flyers will turn due east and across the continent to Bahai Blanca on the Atlantic coast of Argentina. From Buenos Aires, a 700-mile trip up the Parana River into the interior will enable the flight to visit Asunction, the capital of Paraguay. Doubling back by the same route to Montevideo, the planes will again follow the coast line northward, visiting in turn Brazil, the Guianas and Venezuela.

At Trinidad, the route leaves the mainland of South America and a series of inter island hops through the lesser Antilles, Porto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Haiti and Cuba will bring the flyers to Miami, Fla. With Washington as the final destination, stops will be made at Jacksonville, Savannah, Wilmington and Langley Field, Va.

NEW SCANDAL FOR BASEBALL

TY COBB AND TRIS SPEAKER ACCUSED IN GAMBLING PLOT.

DATES BACK TO 1919

Landis Gives No Decision in Case of "Grand Old Men," Both of Them Now Out of Game.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—The names of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, two of "grand old men of organized baseball" were involved in a sensational baseball scandal made public this afternoon by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Landis issued a fifty-page typewritten statement going into the details of charges that Cobb and Speaker, together with Joe Wood, conspired with gamblers in connection with the Detroit-Cleveland game, Sept. 25, 1919.

Landis' statement gave no decision in the case, in view of the fact that Ty Cobb and Speaker are now both outside of organized baseball.

Two Men Held as Robbery Suspects

Nebraska City, Dec. 21.—Authorities were grilling two men here today for an explanation of the $3,600 in currency they were carrying in their pockets when arrested here last night.

Sheriff Carl Rider expressed belief today that the men may have been implicated in a bank robbery in Kansas City last week.

The men gave their names as Clyde A. Stratton, Coin, Ia., and L. Huffman, Wichita, Kan.

One of the bundles of currency bore the wrapper of the City National Bank, Wichita Falls, Tex.

Search for Former Prosecutor Fails

Springfield, Mo., Dec. 21. Efforts to locate J. D. Wallace, whose two-year prison sentence for seduction was affirmed by the state Supreme Court, failed today, according to word from Oregon county where Wallace formerly was prosecutor.

St. Louis Aroused Over Hornsby Deal

Civic Action Is Taken to Prevent Exchange With Giants—Appeal to K. M. Landis.

St. Louis, Dec. 21.—Civic action was started today to prevent the player exchange between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants, whereby Rogers Hornsby, manager of the 1926 world's champions, will become the property of the New York club.

The Chamber of Commerce at a regular meeting decided to ask Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, to refuse to sanction the player exchange.

Jimmy Ring, pitcher, and Frankie Frisch, second baseman, were to come to St. Louis in exchange for Hornsby.

Mayor Victor Miller has also asked Sam Breadon to attempt a get-together which will permit Hornsby to remain in St. Louis, while Hornsby has gone to attorneys over the matter. Hornsby's interests principally are the stock he owns in the St. Louis National League club.

SMITH TO TRY FOR HIS SEAT

ILLINOIS SENATOR-DESIGNATE ACCEPTS APPOINTMENT.

BRINGS FIGHT CLOSER

Center of Controversy Will Go To Washington After Christmas It Is Declared.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The Senate will take "summary action" if Senator Frank L. Smith comes to Washington to take his seat "now, tomorrow or after the Christmas holidays," Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana, declared today.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat of Arizona, announced that as soon as Smith appeared he would call up his resolution to deny Smith the Illinois seat.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Frank L. Smith, senator-designate from Illinois, has accepted the appointment made by Governor Len Small and will make a fight for his seat in the United States Senate, according to a copyrighted article appearing today in the Chicago Daily Journal.

The Journal's article quotes Governor Small as stating that Smith will go to Washington and present his credentials after the Christmas recess.

Smith's decision to accept the appointment to the seat left vacant by the death of the late Senator William B. McKinley brings the Senate fight near at hand. Col. Smith was elected senator from Illinois to succeed McKinley and was to have taken the oath of office next year. McKinley, however, made necessary the appointment of a man for the unfinished term.

Following precedent, Governor Small named the senator-elect for the short term but Smith has been the object of attack because of his primary campaign in which he admitted receipt of contributions of considerable size from Samuel Insull, utilities baron.

President for Delay in Building Cruisers

Coolidge Favors Holding Up Work on Ten New Vessels Until Airplane Carriers Are Finished.

Washington, Dec. 21.—President Coolidge believes work on ten new cruisers, provided in the Butler bill and approved by the President, should wait until airplane carriers, now nearly completed, are finished in the navy yards, his spokesmen said today.

His spokesman did not reveal the President's reason for changing from opposition a fortnight ago to building three cruisers already authorized to advocacy of authorization of ten additional craft. He also did not discuss whether Mr. Coolidge felt funds should be made available now for the cruisers, and the only hint as to time of construction come in his suggestion to wait until the carriers were out of the way. The President was represented as believing the new program would put the United States on a naval par with other nations.

Meantime Chairman Hale of the Senate naval committee voiced approval of the Butler bill and said he favored appropriations at this session to start work on the cruisers.

SPEEDING FREIGHT.

The new president of the Erie Railroad, J. J. Bernet, exemplifies a new principle in railroading, whose value has been proved in his operation of the Nickel Plate.

When Bernet—who had been blacksmith, telegrapher and train dispatcher—was put in charge of the Nickel Plate, he concentrated on two things—getting freight business and speeding freight movements. The two went well together, for the more he speeded the freight, the more freight he got.

Railroads had long averaged about 15 miles a day for freight cars. They were just beginning to move a little faster. Bernet led the speeders. When American railroads in general succeeded in moving their freight an average of 22.4 miles a day, Bernet was moving his 47 miles a day.

Railroad men had held previously that the important thing in efficient transportation was to load locomotives with the maximum quantity of cars and freight. Bernet insisted that this was wise only in sparsely settled areas, and that in highly industrialized sections, the great desideratum was speed. He seems to have proved that.

Speed is today the cardinal principle of American industry. Volume of production is important, but it is speeding machinery and men that makes volume.

The successful speeders, however, are not jumping up and down and running around in circles. Bernet remains calm. Ford remains calm. Judge Gary remains calm. The successful captain of industry—or of anything else, for that matter, generally hurries what he is doing but doesn't let himself be hurried.

The new American rubber enterprises may not "break the British rubber monopoly" but they will stretch it considerably.

TOO MANY STATIONS.

Wisconsin ascertains that filling stations have increased 100 per cent in that state during the past two years, while gasoline consumption has increased only 33 per cent. From January to September but 10 per cent more gasoline was sold than in the same period of 1925, while filling stations increased by 25 per cent. However, enlarged competition is alleged not to mean lower prices. The consumer, in fact, is declared to pay an excessive price of 1½ cents a gallon. To be overstationed is computed to cost the state around $3,750,000 a year, and it is not all paid by summer tourists, either.—Post-Dispatch.

HOW "NEWS" ORIGINATED.

Most people believe that the word "news" originated from the word "new." Although news means literally information which is new, the word really comes from the initials of the four points of the compass. Before the days of newspapers, bulletins were displayed in public places giving the important happenings of the time. All news from the North was placed on a bulletin marked "N," from the East on the "E," bulletin, and in similar manner on West and South. Later the four bulletins were combined, and all the information was given under the four assembled letters "N. E. W. S."—Thrift Magazine.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—What would happen to Mexican-American commerce if the United States severed diplomatic relations with its little dark-complexioned sister?

At the outset, nothing.

But there would be three subsequent dangers, anyone of which might arise to affect Mexico's position as a market for $140,000,000 of American goods annually, or her export trade to this country of approximately $170,000,000. These are:

1. An internal revolution.
2. A boycott of American goods.
3. American intervention.

These possibilities, of course, depend respectively upon the present strength of the Calles government and malcontent elements in Mexico, the temper of the Mexican people and the lengths to which the United States might be willing to go for the benefit of American oil and mining interests.

President Plutarco Calles is the first Mexican executive actually to be elected and installed peacefully in office without the aid of revolt. There are numerous leaders in Mexico obviously dissatisfied with such a quiet procedure who would be glad to upset the present government.

If President Coolidge were to sever relations with the Calles government, these fellows would feel that they were being told to "go to it," and that they would virtually have this country's official support.

A real revolution probably would disrupt Mexico's foreign trade and certainly would engender bitterness among many Mexicans against the United States, but if it were successful the State Department and this country's big interests in Mexico would unquestionably obtain more satisfaction from the ensuing government in regard to the petroleum laws and other questions now at issue.

All three banks of Maryville have been chosen as city depositories.

Former Governors of Two States Lived in Maryville

Mrs. Mary F. Parcher of this city has a scrap book, containing clippings and pictures taken from newspapers of thirty to fifty years ago. Many interesting articles, not only of Maryville and Nodaway County people, but also of the nation, are in the book.

One clipping is about Albert P. Morehouse of Maryville, who was then governor of Missouri, and Samuel D. McEnery, then governor of Louisiana. These two men started their careers in Maryville before the Civil War. The article tells about their first law suit, when Morehouse was on one side and McEnery on the other side, Morehouse winning the case.

The article, evidently written in December, 1887, follows:

There are some coincidents in the careers of Samuel D. McEnery, governor of Louisiana, and Albert P. Morehouse, governor of Missouri, says the St. Louis Republican. They are about the same age, both are the sons of farmers, both taught school, both studied and practiced law. Twenty-nine years ago Sam McEnery and Albert Morehouse settled in Nodaway County, Missouri. McEnery had spent some months at Rochester, N. Y., and secured a diploma from a law school located there. With his parchment in his inside pocket he worked his way to Nodaway County, camped and hung out his shingle. Clients were not numerous and retainers were not fashionable. Food was plenty, however, and the people were generous, and although the young lawyer had his office open for three months before a client sought his services he did not get discouraged.

At last the first client came and the young lawyer felt happy. He was employed in a case before a justice of the peace, involving $15. In the meantime, about a week after McEnery's arrival in Nodaway, a young, tall, gawky looking school teacher named Morehouse arrived from Ohio and announced his intention to become a permanent resident. He entered as a student in the office of a local lawyer and read the text books diligently all day and the greater part of the night. It happened that the lawyer in whose office Morehouse was studying was employed in a case involving $15, on the other side of which McEnery was engaged. The old lawyer happened to be very busy on the day set for trial of the case and he sent Morehouse to the court to represent him. The old fellow understood the merits of the case pretty well, and he pointed out the law to the young student, told him what to say and what points to make.

Thoroughly heeled, young Morehouse went to the court, and met for the first time Sam McEnery, the attorney on the other side. It was the first case of both the young lambs of the law, and Morehouse won it. They became fast friends and chummed together at Maryville from the time of their first meeting until the Civil War broke out.

McEnery was a native of Louisiana, and early in 1861 returned to his state and entered the confederate army. After the war he commenced the practice of law again, and after a while was elected lieutenant governor of Louisiana, and became governor by the death of the governor elected by the people, and subsequently governor by virtue of an election.

Morehouse had continued the practice of law since the time, twenty-nine years ago, when he contested his first case with McEnery. In 1884 he was elected lieutenant governor of Missouri, and a few days ago, on the death of Governor Marmaduke, became governor. Will the sameness in the careers of the two men be followed out by the election of Morehouse to a full term as governor next fall?

EUROPE FINDS MUCH UNREST

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT LACKING IN SEVERAL AREAS.

ALARM ALONG RIVIERA

France Guards Border From Possible Menace Of Italy.—Lithuania And Germany Troubled.

London, Dec. 21.—Political unrest and national nervousness in many European areas today made a jangling discord of the Christmas spirit.

The peace makers believed that 1926, with Locarno Thoiry, and the entry of Germany into the League of Nations, had been remarkable for its progress toward peace. But events on the German, Polish, Luthuanian and Italian frontiers, especially along the Rivera, where Italy meets France, were causing considerable alarm.

Defeat and resignation of the German government of Wilhelm Marx generally was interpreted by the press as meaning delay in the consummation of peace beginnings of Locarno and Geneva.

Although the Lithuanian Coup D' Etat appears to have been an internal affair, Poland was strengthening her border guard and any clash might seriously menace Baltic peace.

The Italy-Albanian treaty alarmed Jugo-Slavia and Turkey, and both the latter countries have taken military precautions against eventualities.

Commenting on development, the News of the World said they pale into insignificance beside the precautions taken by France to guard Nice and Mentone from sudden invasion. "The heights overlooking the border of the Rivera," the paper continued, "bristle with guns."

The Sunday Chronicle said the "biggest war since 1914 is sweeping the Riviera. The last two or three weeks have brought excitement in what might be termed the war zone to fever heat. If Mussolini seizes Tunis, there will be war between the French and Italian troops, and a stray shot or an odd brawl might create a serious situation."

Compromise Seen in Mexico Oil Dispute

With New Forms of Concessions Distributed—Foreign Companies Take Hopeful Attitude.

Mexico City, Dec. 21.—The possibility of compromise in the dispute between the government and foreign oil companies with respect to the latter's mineral rights was revised as a major factor of the situation today as representatives of the companies examined copies of the concession which the government is prepared to grant.

The department of industry distributed the forms among the oil companies. None of the companies officially would comment today, pending detailed examination of the plans, but there was intimated in many quarters a belief that a compromise might be effected.

Concessions would be granted the companies upon their application for confirmation of titles and lease-hold rights already enjoyed. The form said that confirmation would be granted upon administrative examination of the proper documents or upon proof that legal exploitation had taken place. Thereupon the company would obtain legal possession of the area in question without future formality.

The law stipulating this procedure will go into effect January 1. It was against this law that the United States State Department has objected, alleging that it was confiscatory.

Would Tax Bachelors to Decrease Number

New York U. Professor Describes Single Men as "Unweaned Children" Still in Puppy Love Stage

Boston, Dec. 21.—America's bachelorhood is far too large, according to Professor Harry A. Overstreet of New York University, who, to decrease its membership, would place a heavy tax on all unmarried men.

In a recent speech, Professor Overstreet, head of the University's department of philosophy, described the bachelor as "an unweaned child" who has never outgrown the puppy love stage and who still believes his loves of 18 are the only real passions.

"Some men are philanderers because they believe in the motto, "the skin you love to touch," said Prof. Overstreet. "When the skin gets a little wrinkled or chapped, they begin looking around for another skin you love to touch. That's not love."

The only way to leiminate bachelors, he said, was to "put a tax on them, a big one."

Senatorship Costly Before and After

Successful Candidates Must Pay Heavily to Keep in Social Swim—Often Keep Outside Jobs.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Personally the ninety-six members of the United States senate are primarily interested now the increasing pecuniary demands their office is making upon their bankrolls.

Time was when a senator could drive to Washington in a buggy, rent a room in a cheap hotel, eat at a boarding house and yet maintain the dignity of his office.

Not so, any more.

A senator now must have a home in which he can entertain, a wardrobe of swallow tails and a liveried chauffeur, if he intends to ride the social tide to which he is entitled. His family must plunge into the social swim and be maintained in commensurate style.

To meet all these demands on a $10,000 a year salary necessitates book keeping.

Of course there are some bachelor senators who do not go in for society who are able to live very comfortably on their salary from the government, but most members are constrained to seek outside work if it is available. Many continue in the private practice of law, several are western ranchmen, two maintain farms and three are newspaper publishers. A few, however, who have no private fortune and no outside subsistence, are forced to worry along watching their pin money.

As much as it costs to occupy that office, it sometimes costs more to be elected to it. Witness the recent primaries in Pennsylvania where three candidates spent more than $2,000,000 and the Illinois primary where more than $1,000,000 was spent.

It used to be that a candidate could ride through his state in a buggy stopping at cross roads for his open air speeches and stopping at the homes of friends and political admirers.

Now there is an extensive publicity department to organize, radio broadcasting to pay for "educational literature" to be circulated to every voter, and workers to be hired at the polls on election day for in this advanced age the burning of party zeal in the breast of workers does not encompass their desire for the $10 a day usually paid watchers, in most states.

It would seem that the place to be elected senator the cheapest is in the south. Inspection of campaign expenses filed by southern senators indicate that all together the seven of them in seven different states did not spend as much as was spent in one ward in Philadelphia or Pittsburgh.

League Has a Debt Problem of Its Own

Several Small Countries Owe Money.—Merely Resign If Asked To Pay.

Geneva—The League of Nations has a little debt problem of its own, which if not quite as serious as that of the inter allied debts is at least more delicate.

The ticklish part lies in the fact that if the League presses its debtors too hard they merely send in their two years notification of withdrawal from the League, as did Costa Rica.

The principal "Hold-Outs" on the League at the present time are:

Bolivia, 185,000 gold francs.
Honduras, 99,997 gold francs.
Nicaragua, 100,000 gold francs.
Lithuania, 57,000 gold francs.
China, 3,140,000 gold francs.
Peru, 879,168 gold francs.

China, the heaviest debtor, takes the interesting stand that she cannot pay her League quota because the 5 per cent maximum duty which the great powers allow her to impose on importations does not give sufficient revenue even to maintain a central government, and that if the League wants to collect what is due, all it has to do is to intervene for the abrogation of the unequal treaties with China and force the great powers to allow China to fix her own customs tariff on a basis in conformity with her financial needs.

As a partial offset to these "hold-outs," the League has a number of members who are over-paid. Amongst these are The Dominican Republic for the sum of 3,847 gold francs; England, 1,935,158 gold francs; France, 1,720,196 gold francs and Belgium 530,959 gold francs together with a score of others for smaller amounts.

In spite of the above bad "collections," League finances are in excellent shape and ample funds are available for the construction of the League's new $4,000,000 assembly hall and secretariat.

"Watchers of Sky" Organized in Britain

London, Dec. 21.—Like the "Minute Men" of early American revolutionary days, England now has a force known as "Watchers of the Sky" that will rally immediately in defense of the country at the first appearance of an unexpected foe. This is the latest scheme to protect England against enemy aircraft raids.

Under the system established by Major-General E. B. Ashmore, in command of the Territorial Army Air Defense Formations, the country, especially the southern counties which are more accessible, and therefore, more liable to air attack, is divided into zones. Dotted about it are detached posts, which are to telephone to the county center the movements of all aircraft in their area.

It is the aim of the system that no hostile aircraft be allowed to move over any part of the country without its movements instantly being known at the headquarters of Air Defense, which can take action to meet the situation.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN of Pendleton University wages war on JUDITH MARTIN, young English teacher, because of her friendship for ERIC WATERS, radical student leader.

DR. DORN, astronomy professor, is attracted to Judith and tries to convert her to orthodoxy.

MYRA ALDRICH is jealous of Eric's attentions to Judith and turns her energies to vamping Dr. Dorn.

When Mrs. Brown is blackmailed by "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, Judith befriends her, and asks Eric to silence Shea.

Shea is found dead in a creek, and a letter in his pocket leads to the arrest of Eric as material witness.

Mrs. Brown secures his release by providing an alibi for him which endangers her reputation. Her story is kept secret by the prosecutor.

Dr. Dorn calls on Judith in her classroom, and when Eric intrudes, throws him out of the room. Eric has been drinking and collapses in the hall.

Dean Brown insists that she take part in his reform campaign, which is to end with the mammoth revival meeting of Rev. Forrest Poole.

When she refuses, he tells her that his wife does not wish her to come to the house again.

Dean Brown tries to force her to take part in the great reform campaign he is planning.

When Eric sees Judith with Will Wetherel, his frat brother, in a tea shop, he calls her "Miss JUDAS," mockingly. She goes home almost hysterical, and finds a white envelope under the door.

After an unhappy scene with Eric, Judith goes to spend the evening with EVE GERHART, town widow. Eve tries to coax her to make friends with Eric and keep him out of the mad schemes he is forming, to defy the dean.

While they are talking, WILL WETHEREL, Eric's frat brother, rushes in, crying, "Eric and Dr. Dorn are beating each other to a pulp down the road!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Wetherel leaned against the door jamb, panting for breath.

"Will," said Eve, after a moment, "What did you say?"

"Having a fight," Wetherel nodded. "I came to get you?"

"And what," said Eve caustically, "did you think I could do with a couple of battling men?"

Wetherel looked bewildered. "Why, —I don't know, exactly. Tom Ballard and I were coming down the road—I was bringing him to call on you, Eve—when we saw the crowd of people. I caught a glimpse of Eric and Dorn, their shirts torn in ribbons, with blood on their faces, pounding each other for all they were worth. I was so shocked I stood still for a minute—then came to get you. Perhaps I had a vague notion that you could make Eric stop, if anyone could."

Judith looked at Eve, with a flicker of suspicion in her eyes. "You're an awful fool, Will—probably the worst in Pendleton. But what happened?"

He shook his head sadly. "I don't know. They were trying to pull 'em apart when I left."

"What were they fighting about?" asked Eve. But the front door opened again and a lean, sallow face under a freshman's green cap, protruded into the room.

"They've separated 'em," the newcomer shouted to Will. "Gosh what a black eye Waters got!"

"Come on in, Tom," said Wetherel, with a lordly air. "Eve, this is Tom Ballard. Tell us what happened, Tom."

"A couple a huskies did it," he said. "Town fellows coming in from the Red Lantern dance hall, I guess. Anyhow, one grabbed Eric and the other Dorn. That professor chap gave him a slug that set him back a few paces, and when he caught his balance, Dorn was standing there, rolling down his sleeves as calm as life, his face pale as a sheet, where it wasn't bloody.

"The other guy was holding Eric's arm. Dorn put on his hat and walked away like a deacon going to church, with his face still bloody, and his coat over his arm. His shirt tail was torn and flapping out behind."

Wetherel turned to Eve. "This is the worst yet," he declared. "A street brawl! Sigma Psi can't afford—"

Eve looked at him disgustedly. "Oh, damn Sigma Psi!" she exclaimed. "That isn't important."

Wetherel sulked. "Well, I'd like to know why a new fellow like Waters should step in and wreck the reputation of the frat after we've all worked to build it up. I think his pin should be lifted."

Eve made a gesture of incredulity. "You've turned horribly moral all of a sudden." She slapped a cushion into place, sank back against it and lighted another cigaret. "You haven't told us what they were fighting about," she said.

Wetherel looked uncomfortable. "Well, I don't know," he said slowly. "I don't really know." He looked furtively at Judith.

"What happened after they separated them?" Judith asked Tom Ballard.

"Well, the prof walked off and the two fellows held Eric. I guess they let him go home then. I came on here to tell you the news."

Eve rang for the maid. "Bring some coffee and sandwiches," she said. Then, turning back to her guests, she smiled. "The best remedy for heroics and hysterics is food," she said. "Let's forget Eric and Dorn and have a good chat among ourselves."

Wetherel responded with his usual facile flow of chatter. Tom Ballard sat on the floor, with dog-like eyes on Eve. The fire crackled and the talk went on. Judith sat in her place at the other side of the fireplace, lost in thought.

The maid brought her tray and Eve poured the coffee with much light banter. But when Judith declined the sandwiches, she made no attempt to force her to eat.

The little gilt clock on the mantel struck ten, as the maid came in for the tray, Judith stood up. "If you'll call a taxi for me, Will, I'm going home. I'll run up to your room and get my things, Eve."

When she came down again, she paused on the landing. Her name had been spoken in the room below. Flushing a little at her own involuntary move toward eavesdropping, she walked on down. It seemed to her that Eve and Will stopped talking when she entered the living room.

Eve's smile was warm and her handclasp tight, as Judith stood in the open door. "Good night, Judith," said Eve. "Have a good sleep and think over what I've said, in the morning."

The taxi set out for town. Judith sank against its cushions and closed her eyes. The cool night air blew through an open window of the car upon her face, and she lay in a state of passive relaxation during twenty minutes of breakneck speed through quiet streets.

A grinding of the brakes and a violent jolt brought her rudely out of her drowse.

"Damn fool," the chauffeur was saying, under his breath. "Park a car near a corner like that and not leave a light burning! Wrong side of the street, too!"

Judith blinked. They were in College road, not ten yards from the Stedway steps. In front of them, at the curb, stood a long, low racer. As Judith stared at it, someone rose from the driver's seat and came toward the taxi.

"Eric!" she gasped. The chauffeur had been muttering further imprecations at the careless parker. Now he gazed at Judith in amazement. Eric handed him a bill and helped Judith out of the car.

She stood on the sidewalk gazing up at him. The black eye looked, even in the pale moonlight, like a piece of raw beef.

He led her toward the car. "I've been waiting for you a long half hour, Judith," he said. "I had to see you tonight."

Judith was silent. He helped her into the car and sat down beside her. "It was pretty late to come," he said, "but I simply had to see you."

Judith looked at him. "Why?"

Eric met her gaze. "Because I couldn't bear it away from you another minute. Can't we drive out a little way and at least have privacy for our conversation?" he urged, anxiously. "We'll be back in an hour."

"Yes," she said.

Eric began the conversation. "I suppose you'll have to be told about the fight. Everybody in school will know it tomorrow."

"I already know about it," said Judith, and she told him of Wetherel's report of the fight.

"Damned busybody," was his comment.

Judith shrugged.

"Look here," said Eric, "who did he say was winning?"

"Nobody," Judith replied. "He left before the finish."

"Well," continued Eric, "if they'd have left us alone a minute longer, I'd have laid that big stiff out."

Judith smiled wickedly. "Has Dr. Dorn got a black eye too?"

Eric stopped the car and faced her. "I don't know what he's got—Judith, are you in love with that moralizing fool?"

A devil of perversity had seized Judith. "What if I am?"

Eric's face darkened. "You'll never get him. I'll tell you that right now," he said, stubbornly.

"And how do you know?" she asked.

"I can't tell you that. But you mark my words. Peter Dorn will never ask you to marry him."

Judith drew back. "That sounds perilously like an insult, Eric."

Eric leaned forward and seized her hands. "Judith, don't sit her quarreling with me, when our precious time is slipping away. Dr. Dorn doesn't matter—except that I'm so jealous of him I wish I'd broken his neck tonight. What I want to talk about hasn't anything to do with fights and harsh words. Judith, it's a wonderful night. I want it to be a magic night for both of us."

"What do you mean?" 'asked Judith with a hint of uneasiness in her tone.

Eric held her hands closer for a minute, then dropped one of them and slipped an arm around her. "Can't you guess what I'm going to say, Jude?"

"I don't choose to guess," she answered, a little stiffly.

"Then I'll tell you. I want to ask you to marry me—tonight, at Earlham. I've got a license clerk waiting for me there."

Judith begins to have her doubts about Eric, and Dr. Dorn comes to her with an apology.

This and That

And again the question arises, "Is there a Santa Claus?" Several years ago a little girl whose name was Virginia wrote to the New York Sun asking the question, "Is there a Santa Claus?" The man who wrote the reply was made famous over night.

Following is the answer given by the New York newspaperman to Virginia's question:

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible to their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's are little. In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there was no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your father to hire men to watch all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus.

"The most real things in the world are those that neither men nor children can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing in the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You may tear apart a baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest of all the strongest men that ever lived could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond.

"Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives and he lives forever! A thousand years from now, Virginia—nay ten thousand years from now—he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood!"

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Wheat scored huge gains and mounted 1½ to 3½ points, holding all this gain throughout the session, closing at the rise. The cash market was ½ cent higher.

Corn opened lower, but took strength from wheat and made a good comeback, closing ¾ to 1½ cents higher. The cash market was 1 cent lower.

The advance in oats was only fractional. Oats closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher.

Provisions were unchanged.

CATTLE STEADY; LAMBS STRONG. HOGS HIGHER.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Dec. 20.—Trade in cattle opened the week fairly active at steady prices. Receipts were about normal for this period of the year. However, quality was plain to medium, mostly short fed steers. Cows and heifers were quoted steady to weak. Hogs were up 10 to 15 cents from last week's close and sheep and lambs were quoted stronger. In view of the approaching holidays receipts will be moderate for the next two weeks, and small price changes are anticipated here, though Chicago will probably have liberal supplies.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 15,000 cattle, 9,000 hogs and 5,000 sheep, compared with 17,500 cattle, 12,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep a week ago, and 13,900 cattle, 9,150 hogs and 11,750 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Trade in fat cattle held steady with last week's close. Nothing choice to prime was offered, and the average quality was not particularly inviting. Killers however bought freely and the fat steers were fairly well cleaned up by noon. Most of the steers sold at $7.50 to $9.25. Some southwest meal and hull fed steers brought $6.75 to $8.50. A few good grain fat yearlings sold up to $11.50. Practically all the long fed yearlings have been marketed, and the $12 to $13.10 kind in evidence last week will not be available in the next few months. Cow stuff sold slowly at weak prices. Heifers and calves were steady. Most of the cows brought $5 to $6; canners and cutters $3.85 to $4.65; and short fed heifers, $7 to $8.50, and choice veal calves $10.50 to $11.

Stockers and Feeders.

The holiday season checked the demand for stockers and feeders. Prices were quoted easier. Indications are that the letup in inquiry will be only temporary, and that late winter and spring prices will be higher than at the present time.

Hogs.

Urgent demand sent hog prices up 10 to 15 cents today, and an early clearance was reported. This advance took the market to within 25 cents of the recent high point and a dime above a week ago. The 170 to 260 pound hogs sold at $11.40 to $11.65; 260 to 300 pounds, $11.20 to $11.55; 140 to 165 pounds $11.15 to $11.45; packing sows $10 to $10.75; stags $9.50 to $10.25, and stock hogs and pigs $11.25 to $11.75. Receipts will be light the rest of this week and prices should show a further advance.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade in the sheep division was active with a stronger tendency in prices. Last week's decline took the market to the lowest position of the season and indications are that a rally is due in the next few days. Fat lambs are quoted at $11.50 to $12.20; yearlings $9 to $10; wethers, $7 to $8; ewes $5 to $6.25.

Horses and Mules.

The few horses and mules offered sold readily at steady prices. The New Year's trade will open January 3, with a large number of buyers present.

Charles M. Pipkin,
Market Correspondent.

West Plains—A new storage plant will be opened in this city next March. It will include eight large storage rooms with a capacity of ten car loads of produce.

Just arrived — Car Franklin County lump, $8.50 to $9.00 per ton. Car high grade Illinois lump, $7.50 to $8.00 per ton.

Hornsby Is Traded to New York Giants

Pilot Who Led St. Louis Cardinals To First World's Championship Goes For Frisch And Ring.

St. Louis, Dec. 21.—Within less than three months after he had piloted the Cardinals to a world's championship and brought St. Louis its first baseball pennant in thirty-eight years, Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman and playing manager, has been traded to the New York Giants. The action followed disagreement with Sam Breadon, president of the club, over a contract.

Breadon announced last night that Hornsby will go to the Giants in exchange for Frankie Frisch, infilder, and Jimmy Ring, right-handed pitcher.

The trade was accepted as the biggest in the history of modern baseball, involving players estimated to be worth more than half a million dollars. Hornsby's worth was placed at $300,000, both the Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers having offered a quarter of a million for him two years ago. Frisch and Ring together were priced at the same figure.

The acquisition of Hornsby by the Giants gratifies a hope long held by Manager John McGraw. He sought the brilliant Cardinal player. Not only as a strengthening link for the New York infield, but as a rival Metropolitan attraction for "Babe" Ruth of the Yankees.

Breadon announced that the trade was made because of his failure to reach an agreement with Hornsby over a contract at another meeting today, in which Hornsby asked for a 3-year contract, at a salary of $50,000 a year, and Breadon stood pat on a 1-year document, at the same figure. The meeting was the second discussion over the contract in two weeks.

No money was involved in the trade, Breadon said.

Helen Wills Not to Invade Europe

Women's Tennis Champion Says She Owes It to Herself to Complete Art Studies.

New York, Dec. 21.—Announcement of Miss Helen Wills, former national tennis champion, who is here for the holidays in pursuit of her ambition to become a newspaper artist, that she cannot find time to invade Europe next year, leaves William T. Tildon as the ranking standard bearer of the Americans who will go abroad.

Miss Wills explained that there is no patriotic duty to force her to go to Europe and that she has personal duty to complete her art studies.

The Wightman cup matches, for which the United States lawn tennis association sent the American women's team to England this year are to be played in this country next year and there is not the lure of a match against Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen since the French star has turned professional.

Speaking of the professional angle, Miss Wills said she will never turn professional.

SANTA WON'T FORGET HER

Because she has moved to North Dakota, Kathryn Conley, 8 years old, has advised that jolly old fellow, Santa Claus, that he won't have to travel so far now to remember her this Christmas and has urged Santa not to forget her friends in Missouri. Her letter to Santa, sent in care of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune, follows:

Adrain, N. D., Dec. 15, 1926.

Dear Santa: I live in North Dakota now, so you won't have to come so far to see me this Christmas. Will you please bring me a big doll buggy, some paints candy, nuts and oranges. I am 8 years old and in the fourth grade. Don't forget my litttle friend, Venus Gilcher, or my little cousins Marion Holcomb and Virginia Brummett. My little sister, Marjorie, wants a new doll. Don't forget all the little kids in Missouri that I used to go to school with.

"Your little friend,

A word to the WIVES—

P. A. says "MERRY CHRISTMAS" in capital letters

"NO MORE WORRYIN'," as the song says, about what to give the man who smokes a pipe. Here is the National Joy Smoke, Prince Albert, all fussed up in holiday attire. A gift to gladden his heart on the Big Day; a generous supply to keep him happy.

Peeping out of the special Christmas carton is the pound crystal-glass humidor with sponge-moistener top. A container to grace any smoking-stand or office-desk. As practical as it is good-looking. Best of all, it contains Prince Albert—mild, mellow, and fragrant!

In addition to the glass humidor, there are pound and half-pound tins of this same wonderful tobacco. It's the tobacco, after all, that counts. Experienced smokers know that no other tobacco is like P. A. for sheer pipe-enjoyment, day in and day out.

Take out your Christmas list now. Alongside the name of every pipe-smoker write "Prince Albert." This is the happy solution of the annual problem so far as the men-folks are concerned. It will save your time and give others the time of their lives.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
